The Inner Compass

“Let values be your compass, and character your true north.”

Surender P. Sachdeva
Principal

At the heart of a meaningful life is Shishtachar — a timeless blend of discipline, respect and kindness. Discipline is not merely about following rules when someone is watching; it is about developing an inner sense of responsibility that guides our choices, actions and behaviour every day.

Sishtachar finds expression in the simplest of our daily habits — being punctual, speaking politely, listening with attention, respecting others and taking responsibility for our surroundings. A sincere thank you, a helping hand, keeping our spaces clean or being responsible in the digital world may seem like small acts, but they reflect our values and shape the culture of our school.

Self-discipline helps us turn aspirations into achievements. It builds perseverance, strengthens character and gives us the confidence to do what is right, even when no one is watching. Ultimately, our conduct reflects not only our values but also the education and संस्कार we carry with us.

The same spirit of discipline, dedication and perseverance is reflected in the achievements of our students. In academics, Avika Makloha scored an outstanding 99.4% in the CBSE Class XII examinations and secured admission to one of India's leading colleges. Parimoksha Goyal secured admission to Computer Science and Engineering Programme at CUHK with a 100% scholarship as a Lodha Genius Scholar-Elite.

In sports, our students continued to excel, earning 20 podium finishes at the District Yogasana Championship and representing the school with distinction at SGFI, State and National-level competitions in cricket, skating, table tennis, swimming and taekwondo. Adyasha Priyadarshini Mallick won a Bronze Medal at the CBSE National Level, Nadarpreet Kaur secured third position at the State Level in Taekwondo, and our Girls' Badminton Team secured third position at the State Level.

At Inter-DPS Mélange Spectrum 2026, our teams secured first positions in Ionista – Elemental Dramatics and Flux – Influx, along with several second and third positions across Youth Parliament, AEON and SCINARIO. Our students also reached the national finale of the Inter-DPS Hindi Debate Competition, with Arshiya Mittal securing third position in the Individual Category.

Our community outreach and Go-Green initiatives, including Ek Mutthi Anaj, World Nature Conservation Day and Kaushal Bodh, further reflected our students' growing awareness of empathy, sustainability and practical life skills.

These achievements are a matter of pride for our school. More importantly, they remind us that success is most meaningful when it is accompanied by humility, integrity, respect and a sense of responsibility.

Let us continue to practise शिष्टाचार in all that we do and build a school community where discipline is self-driven, respect is mutual, and kindness is a way of life.

A Chronicle of Purpose, Progress and Pride

Dear Parents and Students,

An e-bulletin is more than a collection of events, photographs and achievements. It is a reflection of the spirit of a school—the values it nurtures, the journeys it celebrates and the people who quietly make every milestone possible.

As we bring together this edition, inspired by the timeless value of Sishtachar, we are reminded that excellence is rarely built through extraordinary moments alone. It takes shape through everyday discipline, respectful conduct, thoughtful choices, perseverance and kindness. The accomplishments featured in this edition are, therefore, not merely moments of success; they are glimpses of the values being lived by our students and nurtured by our school community.

Through this e-bulletin, the Editorial Board has endeavoured to capture these stories with care—to preserve achievements, acknowledge effort and celebrate the many ways in which our students continue to learn, contribute and grow. From academic excellence and sporting triumphs to creative pursuits, community initiatives and sustainability efforts, every story reflects a journey of commitment.

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to our esteemed leadership and school authorities for their vision, encouragement and unwavering commitment to creating an environment where discipline is accompanied by empathy, ambition by humility, and achievement by responsibility. We are equally grateful to our teachers, mentors, coaches, staff members, parents and students, whose collective efforts breathe life into every accomplishment featured here.

We sincerely hope this edition does more than inform you. May it inspire you to pause, appreciate the efforts behind every success, and recognise that the smallest acts of Sishtachar often create the strongest foundations for a meaningful life.

Here's to celebrating not just what we achieve, but who we become along the way.

Regards,

Editorial Board

Celebrating the Spirit of Hindi Poetry

The corridors of Delhi Public School Panipat Refinery resonated with the beauty of Hindi literature as the Inter-House Hindi Poetry Recitation Competition was organised on 23 July 2026. Students from all four houses captivated the audience with their expressive renditions, confident stage presence, and impeccable articulation.

Simultaneously, Grade VIII students explored sustainable practices by preparing compost tea using tea leaves, sugar, and compost, which was later used to enrich the plants in the school park. Blending creativity with practical application, the activities nurtured innovation, teamwork, healthy living, and environmental consciousness, empowering students to become responsible and resourceful individuals.

Discovering the Community, One Step at a Time

An enriching neighbourhood exploration provided our young learners with an opportunity to connect classroom concepts with the world around them. As they visited shopping complexes, grocery stores, fruit and vegetable markets, a bank, ATM, post office, and an atta chakki, they observed how these essential services contribute to everyday life.

Adding excitement to the experience, students enthusiastically participated in a role-play activity, confidently portraying doctors, nurses, teachers, chefs, police personnel, firefighters, milkmen, and green grocers. The activity encouraged them to understand the responsibilities of different professions while fostering gratitude, empathy, and respect for community helpers. By combining observation, interaction, and imaginative expression, the experience transformed learning into a joyful and lasting adventure.

Guardians of Tomorrow's Green Earth

The Earth is not ours to inherit; it is ours to protect for generations yet to come." With this inspiring thought, World Nature Conservation Day was observed through engaging activities that encouraged young minds to become thoughtful custodians of the environment.

Grade I students celebrated nature through a collaborative colouring activity, bringing vibrant nature-themed illustrations to life while embracing the message, "If We Preserve, We Prosper." Working together, they discovered that every shared effort adds colour to a greener tomorrow.

Demonstrating creativity with a purpose, Grade II students transformed discarded bottles, juice cartons, ice cream sticks, and earthen pots into eco-friendly bird feeders. Filled with grains and thoughtfully placed across the campus, these handmade creations reflected compassion for the feathered visitors that share our ecosystem.

The celebration beautifully reaffirmed that environmental stewardship begins with small, mindful actions, and that today's little hands hold the power to shape tomorrow's sustainable world.

Shishtachar: More Than Just Good Manners

- Jivanshi Nagpal, XIIA

We often hear our teachers telling us, “Have some manners and discipline.” As students, we usually understand it as simply being polite, respecting elders and using words like please, sorry and thank you. But as we grow older, we realise that shishtachar is much more than a set of rules. It is a reflection of our character.

In our daily lives, we meet people from different backgrounds, with different opinions and different ways of thinking. We may not always agree with them, but the way we behave says a lot about us. School is one of the first places where we truly learn this. From standing together during the morning assembly to respecting our teachers and keeping our surroundings clean, these habits slowly become a part of our personality. Sometimes, even a simple “Good morning, ma’am” or “Thank you” can make a conversation feel different. These may seem like very small things, but they create a sense of respect and warmth around us.

As seniors, we are often told that we are about to step into the “real world.” We worry about marks, careers, college admissions and what comes next. But perhaps one of the most important things we should carry with us from school is not written in any textbook—the ability to treat people well. I have realised that being well-mannered does not mean being perfect. We all lose our patience, make mistakes and sometimes say things we do not mean. Shishtachar is also about having the maturity to realise our mistake. In a school, where hundreds of students and teachers spend so much time together, our behaviour affects more people than we realise. A little patience, kindness and respect can make the environment better for everyone.

Ultimately, shishtachar is not something we should practise only because someone is watching. It should become a part of who we are. Our marks may tell people how well we studied, but our manners tell them how well we were raised and, more importantly, what kind of person we chose to become.

As we leave school and move towards a new chapter of our lives, I believe this is one lesson worth carrying with us—not just for examinations, but for life.

A Kind Society

Gurleen Kaur , XII-D

Kindness is really hard to find,
in a world where a person uses his mind,
only to calculate, his personal gains all the time.

Why is everyone so selfish?
Why is no one trying to cherish?
The sweet cake of kindness,
It's main ingredient is being kind,
Where humanity is finally aligned,
To create a better society.

A beautiful society, where variety of people are present.
People who not always resent, each other.
People who act like sister and brother,
trying to take care of each other.
Trying hard to be kind,
in a world where it's difficult to find kindness.

So can we try to build that society,
where people are there for each other,
like siblings , like a sister and a brother ?
Where the only thing seen is happiness which sometime comes from kindness .

The Quiet Language

-Hitakrit, XD

Shishtachar is not a word we simply say,
It lives in little things we do each day.
In a gentle “please,” a thankful “thank you,”
In helping someone when they need you.

It is the pause before we speak,
The strength to be kind when we could be weak.
It is giving others room to shine,
And knowing their feelings matter like mine.

It is not the clothes we wear,
Or how loudly we show that we care.
It is found in the way we greet,
In making kindness our daily beat.

A smile to a stranger, a hand held near,
A listening heart, a voice sincere.
For manners are more than rules to obey—
They are the footprints we leave each day.

So let our words be soft and true,
Let respect be something we always do.
For in a world that speaks so loud,
Good manners make us quietly proud.

Episode : Discipline in A Youth's Life

Drishti: Welcome to The Understood! I'm Drishti!

Nishita: and I'm Nishita! Today, we're calling out a universal student struggle, procrastination.

Drishti: Why do you think we keep pushing things off, even when the deadline is hanging over our head?

Nishita: Honestly, it narrows down to instant gratification, holding on to the fun for now and pushing the stress onto the future us.

Drishti: So, we choose temporary relief over real progress, getting caught in a vicious cycle! How can we break free?

Nishita: with discipline acting as a bridge between intention and execution. It gets us to move before motivation kicks in.

Drishti: So, action creates momentum, not the other way around! But what about our shrinking attention span?

Nishita: Doom-scrolling and constant notifications keep us hooked on endless dopamine, making focus a rare jewel.

Drishti: So, it boils down to Fear of Missing Out, in what way would discipline turn the tide here?

Nishita: With us keeping our devices away, discipline is about taking back the reins of our time.

Drishti: So, we reach a splendid conclusion, true discipline is self-mastery, choosing long-term gains over fleeting pleasures, one action at a time.

हर एक जीवन में अनुशासन "अनुशासन की पुकार"

Adhrit Jain, IV D

जब मन अपनी राह भटक जाए,
सपनों का हर दीपक बुझ जाए।
तब एक आवाज़ चुपके से कहती है,
"अनुशासन ही मंजिल तक ले जाती है।"

हम पल यूँ ही आराम में सो जाते हैं,
कभी कदमों को मंजिल का नाम बताते हैं।
समय किसी को लौटकर नहीं आता,
हर गलती हमें बस याद कर जाता।

माँ की उम्मीदें, पिता का विश्वास,
सब टूट जाता है एक छोटी-सी लापरवाही के पास।
जब मेहनत अधूरी रह जाती है,
जिंदगी भी चुपचाप रो जाती है।

अनुशासन कोई बंधन नहीं,
यह तो सपनों की सबसे सुंदर डोर है।
जो इसे दिल से अपनाता है,
वही हर अंधेरे में भी उजाला पाता है।

इसलिए आज ही खुद से एक वादा करें,
हर पल का सम्मान करें।
कभी कल पछतावे के आँसू न बहें,
और माता-पिता गर्व से मुस्कुराएँ—

"हमारा बच्चा अपने अनुशासन से ही अपनी सबसे बड़ी जीत लिख गया।"

Shishtachar: Discipline in Everyday Life

Harshvardhan X A

“Discipline is the bridge between goals and accomplishment.”

Discipline, or Shishtachar, is an essential quality that helps us lead a meaningful and successful life. It means following rules, respecting others, managing our time wisely and performing our duties sincerely. Discipline is not about strict restrictions; rather, it teaches us self-control and responsibility.

Discipline begins with small habits in our everyday life. Waking up on time, maintaining personal cleanliness, completing homework regularly, reaching school punctually and respecting teachers and elders are simple examples of disciplined behaviour. In public places, following traffic rules, standing in queues, keeping our surroundings clean and speaking politely also reflect good Shishtachar.

For students, discipline is especially important. It helps us remain focused on our studies, balance academics with other activities and develop a sense of responsibility. A disciplined student understands that success cannot be achieved through talent alone; consistent effort and good habits are equally important.

Discipline also contributes to a peaceful society. When people follow rules and respect one another, cooperation and harmony naturally increase. Thus, Shishtachar is what teaches us discipline and responsibility, helping us become individuals that are responsible for society.

DISCIPLINE IN SCHOOL LIFE

Manasvi Sharma, VIII D

“Discipline is not the silence in a classroom; it is the wisdom to know when to speak and when to listen.”

Many of us have thought that discipline means sitting quietly in class, wearing the correct uniform, reaching school on time, and never breaking a rule. But, is that what discipline actually is? The camera knows whether a student sitting silently is actually paying attention. What about a student who follows every rule but isn't accountable for his actions? What if someone scores high but cheats to achieve that?

The right deduction is that discipline is not merely about obedience, it is the virtuous habit of staying self-restraint even when nobody is watching. This true discipline begins when supervision ends and is built through choices.

Every problem has its solution. One of this is procrastinating our studies and not revising concepts on regular basis. The path to solve this problem should be covered in small steps — set clear goals and prioritize tasks, to achieve something, either academic or personal pursuits, one should stay consistent.

In conclusion, discipline is not about being silent, but about being consistent. It teaches us to stay the course even when the path seems difficult. Rules may guide us, but discipline shapes us.

Can You Guess Me?

I have no voice, yet I tell you when to begin.
I have no hands, yet I keep you from giving in.
I make you wake up when you want to stay in bed,
And remind you to finish what you once said.

I don't need a teacher standing by,
I work even when nobody's nearby.
I turn little habits into something great—
Without me, success may have to wait.

Who am I?

SHISTACHAR

Era Parashari, IX C

"Manners maketh man." This is a famous saying that reminds us that SHISTACHAR, or good manners, are crucial even today in this outlandish dynamic world. It's way beyond being kind or polite as it's the mirror of a person's education, upbringing and character. Manners are also the foundation that holds our society together.

In DPS Panipat Refinery, good manners are equally as mandatory as good academic and physical health. We encourage children to be on time, wear neat and clean uniform and peer monitoring form our hardworking students' council and house officials, discipline and punctuality is maintained.

Every week, assemblies are also held for III-X grades where core value is discussed every morning. Younger grades are also taught politeness, teamwork and unity through various competitions and activities. These activities help in character development. Sports is also known for instilling confidence, intellect, care for others and harmony and thus every class from I to X have games periods at least twice a week.

Otherwise as well, through constant communication, teamwork, role-playing activities, moral-science classes and unified approach, we ensure that our students are well-mannered and modest, with education and physique as an equipment they receive from school. Through these methods, DPS students learn manners.

Shishtachar – Good Manners

Sandhya Rani, VIII C

Shishtachar means good manners and good conduct. It shows how we behave with others.

A person with good manners is respected everywhere. Good manners are not taught in books; we learn them from parents and teachers.

We should respect elders, say Please, Thank you, and Sorry, and speak politely. At home, we should help our parents. At school, we should respect our teachers and be kind to our friends.

In public, we should not throw garbage. We should stand in queues and help others. We should also not waste food.

In simple words, shishtachar means to treat others the way you want to be treated. In today's modern world, people have become very busy and often forget good manners. But we must remember that money and success are temporary, but good manners are always remembered.
